

Three Sentence Sequences

These cards may be used for two different therapy activities. On the red diamond side, the students are instructed to use the main ideas of the three given sentences to form one complex sentence using connecting words such as; and, so, but, because, before, after, when, while, that, and then. They are not to use the same connecting words more than once in a single sentence. You may need to instruct students to replace parts of the sentence with pronouns to reduce duplication. In order to do this activity, the student will need to consider which information is important, hold information into memory, think about time sequence, and then manipulate the ideas into one sentence. These are prerequisite skills for note taking.

The blue arrowed side of the cards contains sentence examples from the red diamond side. One of the sentences does not have the same meaning as the other two or is an incorrect use of the sentences. The student is instructed to find the incorrect sentence. The answer can be checked by scanning the QR code in the lower right corner of the card or using the following answer sheet. Students can correct the error sentence for additional practice.

These cards are meant to be printed on card stock. The cards can have a front and a back side. If you want a front and a back, do not cut the middle line. Fold the card back so that it becomes two sided. You can glue them together to make one sturdy card.

The QR codes are from <http://www.qrstuff.com/>. They are read by scanning the symbol with a reader that can be downloaded as an app on electronic devices. Check the app store for your particular device to get a reader.
